Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run-down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 35 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had a d d in tense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $8 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McBurn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

FARMERS' ORGANIZATIONS.
A Marked Example of Successful Co-operation.

It is generally conceded that granger trade has not been a success, at least so far as I know its history in New York state, remarks Mr. H. E. Cook in Tribune-Farmer. The cause, primarily, has been the feeling that grange money was more valuable than other coin under similar circumstances. Secret prices were given to members of the order for cash, of course—but other people soon learned that cash payment meant the same discount whether one was a granger or not. Then came the "trade card" system, which is only now nominally in vogue and will, I am sure, shortly pass out entirely. Individually my experience I have been that cheap prices mean cheap goods—that is, when reckoned upon the same basis, either cash or credit, wholesale or retail.

I recently visited the store of the Leyden Union, located at Leyden, Lewis county, N. Y. It has been in successful operation since 1892. The location is no more than a few country farm corners, with a few houses near by—that is, there is no trade or business besides that of the farmers. This store, which is managed by grangers, tries the first special price business, but soon found that prices must be the same to all if payment was upon the same basis.

They managed for ten years upon a simple mutual agreement plan, but in 1902 were incorporated, and 134 shares of $25 each were taken by the grangers. Under the original plan not more than $10 could be held by any one granger. The business amounts to from $14,000 to $18,000 annually—from $40 to $50 per day—a good trade considering the fact that they must compete with three good sized country towns only five to seven miles distant. The stock carried is not heavy—from $3,500 to $4,000, including the usual everyday requirements of the house and field. Staple goods only were not feasible upon shelf and counter. I was informed that without exception the goods were first class. It was difficult to ascertain the value of the stock, because none was for sale. I imagine, however, that it was not as low as United States Steel nor as high as the Chemical Bank of New York, but it was an investment that any farmer would be pleased to have. The building, which is also used in its upper story for a grange hall, is owned by the Leyden Building association, incorporated, and is leased to the Leyden Union. Here are three flourishing organizations: Leyden grange, Leyden union and Leyden Building association, all in the hands of energetic, up to date farmers.

Pennsylvania's Patrons.
A series of picnics will again be held in the month of August throughout the state of Pennsylvania under the auspices of the state grange. The services of Mr. Oliver Wilson, master of Illinois state grange, have been secured for three weeks. Hon. Aaron Jones of Indiana, master of the national grange, will give some time to that state, as will also Hon. Mortimer Whitehead of New Jersey, past lecturer of the national grange. The year 1903 was the largest grange year that Pennsylvania has had. Almost as many application blanks have been called for from the state secretary's office during the first half of 1904 as were wanted during the year 1903. The next meeting of the Pennsylvania state grange will be held in the city of Erie the second week in December.

Death of a Prominent Ohio Granger.
S. H. Ellis of Waynesville, O., died June 23 from injuries sustained by falling from a fruit tree. His funeral was attended by his official associates from all sections of the state. Mr. Ellis was present at the organization of the Ohio state grange and had been actively connected with it, either as master or chairman of its executive committee, until his death. He was for many years trustee of the Ohio state university and a member of the board of control of the Ohio experiment station and a member of the state board of agriculture.

A Cheese Weighing 2,900 Pounds.
The largest cream cheese ever made is installed in the Missouri dairy exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture, world's fair. It weighs 2,900 pounds and is more than seven feet in diameter. On the face of the cheese, in high relief, is a life size maid milking a Holstein cow. Underneath the picture are these words: "Missouri in Clover."

We hope to see other state granges following the example of New York in offering free grange scholarships in agricultural colleges to young members of the Order. They are awarded in New York on competitive examination.

Every grange should give much attention to the subject of teaching the rudiments of agriculture in the public schools. Discuss the advantages of such education and be ready to act when the time comes.

Does every name on the grange roll stand for a live, active, interested member, or are some of them patrons of insurance only?

An Animal Story For Little Folks
The Two Pigs

A man was taking a pig to market when they came to a tree on which hung hundreds of apples.

"I'd like to have an apple," said the pig as he looked up wistfully.

"I'd like to have a barrel of apples," said the man, eying the fruit greedily.

A little farther they came to a pear tree.

"I'd like to have a pear," said the hungry pig.

"I'd like to have a wagon load of pears," said the man.

Presently they passed a grapevine.

"I'd like to have a bunch of grapes," said the pig.

"I'd like to have a bunch of grapes," said the man.

"I'd like to have my wine press full of grapes," said the man.

They walked on until a large melon patch was seen at the side of the road.

"I'D LIKE TO HAVE AN APPLE"

"Oh, I wish I had a melon," sighed the pig.

"I would like to have a car load of melons," growled the man.

"Well, look here, mister, you are a bigger pig than I am. I think we are at the wrong ends of this string."

With a dash he went between the man's legs and upset him on the ground. Then Mr. Pig ran into the melon patch and picked out a good, ripe melon and ate it, while the man got up and brushed off his clothes and went home—Atlanta Constitution.

RUMFORD POINT.
Sunday afternoon the Misses Rice and Flagg, two young ladies boarding at Mrs. Jane Kimball's, were out driving. Upon reaching the ferry here Miss Flagg got out to sound the trumpet, and the horse at once became unmanageable and rushed for the river. Miss Rice succeeded in jumping out after the wagon reached the water. She was safe, save for a slight wetting, but the horse was drowned before assistance could reach him. The horse was owned by Alvin Goddard, the ferryman. Miss Flagg left for home, Monday morning.

Hon. M. E. Ingalls Had a Close Call.
According to an Indianapolis dispatch to the New York Sun, M. E. Ingalls (a native of Harrison, Maine) president of the Big Four Railroad Company, and a party of friends were saved from probably serious injuries, Sunday, by an Elkhardt county farmer. Mr. Ingalls and his friends passed through Goshen on a special train composed of an engine and two coaches. The train had the right of way over the road and was traveling at a high rate of speed. Alvin Blough, a farmer living near the railroad track, was walking along the track, and just as he heard the whistle of the train for a crossing, he saw that a part of a rail had been broken. He did not have time to run ahead and flag the train so as to stop it, and he hastily placed the broken rail in position and jumped to one side. Blough thought possibly that the broken rail might remain in position and carry the train across, and in this he was not mistaken. The train passed safely over it, but the rail was displaced as the last wheel went over it and was found forty feet away down the track.

Col. Jas. O. Lyford of Boston will speak at Harrison in the interest of the Republicans, Sept. 10.

It pays to hold your elections a little before the rest, as do Vermont and Maine. In that way you get all the cream of the oratorical talent.

No. September is no longer chiefly noted for being the first month of the oyster season but because it is the month of Oxford County Agricultural fair.

This year it's to be bigger, better, grander than ever.

Ira Clemmons, who lives in Cornish village, was badly injured by a falling tree while he was at work in the woods Thursday forenoon, Sept. 1st. A scalp wound was cut in the head that took 25 stitches to close. The injured was felling a tree where he was cutting wood, when it took a bad bound and one of the jagged branches struck him on the head. He was knocked down and his companions who rushed to the spot believed him dead.

Consumption
The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Douglas Reunion.
The fourth Wednesday in August the pupils of Miss Douglass held their sixth annual reunion at Grange hall, Bolster's Mills. The forenoon was spent socially. At noon sixteen scholars together with their teachers and invited friends enjoyed the bounteous dinner.

The afternoon exercises were opened by singing the Doxology, followed by prayer. Then, according to the old time custom, Miss Douglass called the "roll," which showed that one hundred and thirty-three different pupils were registered in 1877, '78 and '79, and out of that number about fifty are now living.

Miss Douglass, in her sweet way, spoke many helpful words to both old and young. The remainder of the program consisted of remarks by the "boys and girls," interspersed by a vocal solo by Frank Barrows and instrumental music by Dr. E. A. Wright, a well rendered humorous selection by Ethel Haskell and an effective original part by Rebecca Stuart Shedd.

Of course they enjoyed the dinner at noon, which was in the house and grounds, all of which had been placed at the disposal of the assembled company by Brother and Sister Howard.

In the afternoon there was a fine literary program consisting of singing by the Grange choir, Brother and Sister Barnard, readings and recitations by Sisters Roberts, Moulton and others, and an address by Brother Moulton, who was drafted into the service to take the place of the speaker from abroad who could not be procured.

After the conclusion of the exercises there was a game of base ball between two picked up teams that did some good playing, croquet and other games. All were well satisfied with the success of the meeting, which was the first one of the kind that the Grange has attempted to hold.

"Off to Massasa." There was not quite so much excitement over the departure of the soldier boys for the South as there was in 1898 or 1899.

Oxford, 1, West Paris, O. Oxford defeated West Paris on the Fair Grounds, Saturday, in a close and interesting game. The only score of the game was made by Oxford in the sixth inning on a clean single by Wilson, two sacrifice hits and a wild throw by Bowker.

West Paris had a grand chance to win or tie in the ninth, when two singles and a sacrifice put a man on second and third with two out, but Cole, the last man up, struck out for the second time.

Given the Egg. Our citizens, some of them, will remember the man who did such a brisk business selling razors in our village one evening several weeks ago. Perhaps some of his customers will enjoy reading the following from the Piscataquis Observer:

"At about this time (the time when he began to give away razors at a dollar apiece) one of Henderson's prominent merchants got imbedded with the idea that he wanted one of those razors, felt in his pants and found he had no money with him; so he hurried back to his place of business, shouting to the 'razor' to hold up, that he would be back in a minute. When he arrived at his store he found his wife there, considerably exercised over the fact that their boys had been in looking for a razor, and she, suspecting that there was to be 'something done' urged the merchant to hurry back and find the boys and bring them home. This was exactly what the merchant desired—an excuse to go back—so as to get a razor. Hurriedly going to his room he took three silver dollars and started for the 'razor' holding the money tight in his hand with his mouth all made up ready to yell 'give me three of them.' He arrived there all right, and began edging towards the wagon. In the meantime the 'boys' had got into position on the other side of the wagon, behind a fence, and opened up their batteries. Eggs of all ages began to fly, a perfect shower of them, and as the merchant was in the act of shoving up his three dollars, an egg, exactly three years old, took him square in the eye. The 'razor' had got three or four in the same place and this had broken his flow of language. The egg in the eye and the lack of 'gab' by the razor broke the spell on the merchant; he left and still has his three dollars. The razor also left and still has his razors."

It might be well to say in closing that there are only two merchants in Henderson and only one of them has boys; but of these boys are ballplayers and Henderson people are wondering whether the 'boys' peddled their father in the eye to stop his purchase of razors, or whether the egg was intended for the razor."

Friday morning, Verne M. Whitman and family removed to Peterborough, N. H., where Mr. Whitman has a situation as principal of the high school, taking upon his duties this week. Peterborough is a town about the size of Norway. The high school is a little larger than this and with a salary some two hundred dollars larger. Mr. and Mrs. Whitman will be greatly missed in Norway in a wide circle socially, but above all among musically interested, as both are accomplished and well trained musicians, and their services were frequently in demand and heartily given. Their many friends wish them success in their new home.

An Easy Business. The easiest business in this world is dry goods; the reason is: customers want the stuff as much as they want to sell it; they come in; look at the goods and buy. That's the whole business.

Devoe comes next. It saves money, and people like money. They like somebody else's more than their own; they like to make it more than to save it; they like to keep it perhaps as well as to make it.

Buildings run down fast, without paint; poor paint is the same. Devoe is the means of stopping that leak; a big one. All we've got to do, to sell Devoe, is to show that a man saves money by using it.

E. D. Jewell, Corry, Pa., painted his house 5 years ago with a mixed paint; 14 gallons. Last spring he painted Devoe; 10 gallons. Saved $15 to $20.

F. P. STONE.

Now the man who has enjoyed no vacation this summer can congratulate himself that he has not got to return and get into the harness once more. There's no loss without some gain.

Children's Corner.

An Appeal to the Advertiser.

My name is Sir Launcelet, and I come of a family any dog might well be proud of but I don't wish to boast. My people have acquired the foolish habit of calling me "Rags" and "Mop" and "Wumb" and I do not approve of it at all, but of course I have to answer when I am called on I might miss a bone or some other dainty, and then Fido would get it.

Fido is a common ugly-faced pug, who lives in the same house with me, and we have very nice times if we do sometimes disagree. The same members of the family that call me names often call him "Brother Rastus" and "Waggles." They say he looks like a colored gentleman with his big eyes and white teeth and wise look.

Between you and me I can see a resemblance myself once in a while (you see I used to live down South) but I do not let on to Fido that I can for I really hate to hurt his feelings.

I hear you have a correspondents' column in the ADVERTISER, where you answer all kinds of questions and I want to ask you one or two.

Now when two little dogs live in the same house don't you think if one has a bone the other should have one too?

It is not that way in this house, I can tell you, and I know of several instances where Fido has had three to my one—and he that fat now he can scarcely waddle!

It was a case of this kind that caused me to do a little thing that has been thrown up at me so many times, I want to tell you about it and ask your opinion of it.

It was this way: I stepped to the door one morning and there was Fido gnawing the most luscious looking bone, and not one had I seen for three days. Imagine my feelings if you can! But I would not fight for it, O, no! I do not come of a fighting family and besides it makes me feel kind of weak and trembling to think of a fight.

It always has ever since a big St. Bernard attacked me one morning and shook me up and down in a drain from a kitchen sink near the roadside. It was a dreadful experience and I thought I would associate with the mud and water, and I would if my mistress had not come to my rescue with a big stick. She drove off the fierce creature and wrapped me in the carriage robe and pushed me under the buggy seat saying: "Now stay there you little simpleton until we get home. I hope you will be foolish enough to bristle up to a dog ten times your size again." And I never have.

But to return to Fido. There he lay gnawing the bone in the most tantalizing manner. I watched him until every nerve in my body was tingling with envy, and I determined to become the possessor of that bone.

I could not by any magic call it away, but a brilliant thought struck me—I might call Fido away from it. I sat quietly on the doorstep a few minutes to formulate my plans, then I started with a rush for the road, barking as loud as ever I could.

Fido kept on gnawing but I could see he was becoming interested and wondering if the Noe dog was in sight. The Noe dog is the only one in town that will run from Fido and me, so he never likes to lose a chance to try his speed.

Shook and growled fiercely for a moment and up the road out of sight I dashed. Fido could never stand that. He thought the Noe dog was there and he never could give me the glory of putting Rover Noe to flight all alone, so on he came too, fairly tumbling over himself in his haste to get ahead of me.

This was my opportunity and as he shot past me I turned back and had that bone before you could say "Jack Robinson." It was several minutes before Fido satisfied himself there was nothing to be seen and came trotting back to find me just finishing his bone.

Fido looked silly enough when he found he had been fooled, but like the good-natured fellow he is made the best of it. It would have ended there but when we went in to the house the folks, had seen us from the window, commenced to call me a fraud and said I obtained goods under false pretences and was acquiring "Yankee tricks" very fast.

Now do you think it was any more than a little harmless diplomacy?

It makes me ashamed to have such accusations made against me for fear some of my aristocratic relations might hear of it, so I appeal to you knowing you will tell me what is right.

There is something else I wished to ask but Fido is calling me to go over to Mrs. Lena's after a doughnut. She has the most delicious doughnuts you ever saw in her pantry and Fido goes right up to the door and barks till he gets one. My modesty would never allow me to do that and I stand back politely, but Mrs. Lena always gives me one of the best, so I will accept Fido's kind invitation.

Very respectfully,
SIR LAUNCELOT.

Why They Read The Advertiser. Likes the Old Time Sketches.

You requested me by card to tell why I was interested in reading the ADVERTISER. Well it is a home paper, I being a native of Bethel also the native town of my father, Daniel Bean. My mother was a native of Sunday River in Newry. It's a clean paper taking no part in political jangles. Then its weekly visits are like getting many letters informing me of what is going on in many towns in Oxford county. It keeps me posted on all matters of interest to me.

Another point that is of great interest to me are the old time sketches of the early days in Maine, Oxford county in particular. Those old time stories interest me very much. I would be glad to see more of them in the ADVERTISER. But the old boys that used to write them have many of them passed to the beyond. Well, I am not capable to tell the editor how to run the ADVERTISER. I think he is capable to run it without my advice. Long may the ADVERTISER live and prosper my old age, and many others of its readers.

Golden Glow Glows.

Many flower gardens are now appearing at their best, some have hundreds of different colored flowers, but none of them are complete without the beautiful golden glow which is seen in nearly every cultivated bed in the suburbs.

This bright yellow piece of horticultural decorations has been remarkable. All through the country, it may be seen in large quantities. Its tall rubricolor, as the botanist calls it, particular prominent, and from its very simplicity, it stands out among the flowers in beauty as it does in height.

EAST STONEHAM.

A Dishonest Teamster.

I will relate a little incident that occurred many years ago, in which a Poland man was principal actor. It was before the railroad was built, and when there was a good deal of teaming with horses and oxen on the road to Portland, when teamsters often put up at the half way "tavern" overnight, that this happened. There were several teamsters one night, some of them carrying produce of various kinds, and some had other articles to market as the sequel will show.

It was when shoe pegs were made by hand, mostly, and one of the teamsters had a bag of shoe pegs in his load. After the most of the teams had been cared for, at night a dishonest one slipped out to the barn and without a light felt his way to another man's load and obtained a big feed for his horse, of what he supposed to be oats by the feeling. But, alas! he was in too much of a hurry for fear of being detected.

The next morning he arose early, but others were just early to rise, and the dishonest teamster's poor old horse stood staring over a peak of shoe pegs which lay before him. The owner of the horse never heard the last of it, and paid roundly for the pegs besides.

Hedge of Goldenrod and Aster.

If the goldenrod were a rare flower and cost a dollar a spray it would quickly become more popular than many of the present hot-house fads of society. But it is not one whit the less beautiful because it is common. Just go out in the fields this afternoon and pick a single spray, examine it carefully, and then I warrant if it is not one of the most beautiful and truly beautiful as this wonderful flower of gold.

And if you wish to make in your garden the most beautiful hedge you ever saw, I'll tell you how to do it.

Go out in the fields while the goldenrod and aster are in their prime, and with pieces of tape or any other way mark a number of the finest clumps, selecting those of about equal height. Then in the late fall dig up those roots and transplant them in your garden.

Set them out in a row alternating the goldenrod and aster, and so close together that there will be no gaps when they are in bloom next year. A double row is still better, and the most beautiful hedge I have ever seen was made thus by setting out these plants either side of a well-kept garden path.

I am not usually in favor of uprooting of wild flowers, but as the United States boasts of some 85 species of goldenrod and perhaps twice as many kinds of asters, and as these flowers fairly carpet the earth in the fall, the number which we shall take for our hedges will never be missed.

Of all the diseases known to which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless prompt and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives. Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham's early years gave careful study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for women's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—made sure that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was certain to control that dreaded disease, woman's kidney troubles.

Read What Mrs. Weisslitz Says. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years my life was simply a burden. I suffered so with female troubles, and pains across my back and loins. The doctor told me that I had kidney troubles and prescribed for me. For three months I took his medicine, but grew steadily worse. My husband then advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought home a bottle. It is the greatest blessing ever brought to our home. Within three months I was a changed woman. My pain had disappeared, my complexion became clear, my eyes bright, and my entire system in good shape."—MRS. PAULA WEISLITZ, 176 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. DENMARK.

A Dancing Party. Edith Nelson Connor of Boston, Mass., who is spending the summer with Mrs. Horace Olson Orcutt, celebrated her birthday, Friday evening, in a most fitting manner by giving a dancing party at Bradbury's hall.

Mrs. Connor led the grand march with Albert F. Wentworth. She was crowned in white pea de cygne and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Following in the march were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Orcutt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richardson, Mrs. Clarence and Cora Jordan, Charles Wentworth and Maudie Bartlett, Glenn Gray and Mattie Richardson, William Deasey and Lillian Gerry and about fifteen more couples of Denmark's fair maidens and stalwart youths.

During the intermission Mr. Clancy, widely known in Boston as the theatrical circles, favored the ladies and gentlemen with vocal and instrumental selections, his specialty being corn songs. Ice cream and cake was served.

An amusing incident of the evening was the wearing of paper caps enclosed in the gayly colored bonbons given out during the intermission. Harry Small looked particularly charming in his high crowned green cap. The toy whistles enclosed with the caps were used to good advantage, and the sentimental verses of rhyme caused a great deal of merriment.

Richardson's orchestra furnished the music and Fred Bradbury served the collation.

At one o'clock the merry dancers started for home, each one declaring he had spent an enjoyable evening.

The Robinson family had a musical concert, Aug. 25th, at I. O. O. F. hall.

Do They Forget?

Do they love us still, those spirits bright,
Who far from home have sped?
Do they love us still in those realms of light,
Our blessed, beautiful dead?
Do those dear ones safe in the heavenly land
Ne'er think of the loved ones here,
Who are missing the touch of a loving hand,
The tone of a voice most dear?
Do they talk as they climb the painless hills,
In familiar converse sweet?
Of those who are trading earth's pathway still
With weary and wayworn feet?
Ah! no! though their light in this world has paled,
Dream not that their hearts forget.
Can we doubt their love when it never failed?
Aye, we know that they love us yet.
They call our names in the twilight gray,
When the shadows of evening fall,
Those sweet, low voices from far away,
In heavenly cadence call!
Full often they stand at the Beautiful Gate,
When God's children are gathering home,
And with eager expectant faces wait!
To see if their own have come.
O those loving hearts in the realms above
That in life we can ne'er forget,
We know they are watching with eyes of love,
We know that they love us yet!

The Country Town.

It's common to sneer at the country town,
With its quiet streets and its peaceful air,
Where the little river meanders down
To be lost in the broad, blue sea somewhere,
As we who think we are wise are lost
In the roaring city, that like the sea,
Has its ebbs and flows, with its millions tossed
As bubbles robbed of identity.
There's fellowship in the country town,
Where its empty streets and its spreading
trees,
Where the country song birds warble down
At mids as fair as man ever sees;
Where the wind blows sweet from the fields
nearby,
Where men know the names which their neighbors bear,
Where a man is missed when he's gone to live
With the peaceful ones who have ceased to care.
There are joys out there in the country town,
That we of the city may never know.
In the rush for money and for renown,
Confronting strangers where'er we turn,
O, wasn't God's world serene and fair
In the country town ere we came away!
And won't it be sweet to sleep out there,
Far from the city's noise, some day?

Much Joy at Gypsy Wedding.

Coney Island Nuptials, a Medley of Bliss
and Free Beer and Bacteria and Bizarre Costumes with Axe Grease Applique—
"Hey, Kape, Yo' Len! Me a Cigarette!"
Said the Bride When Joe Was Made Hers.
There was a grand gypsy wedding the other day near Coney Island. It isn't often that the gypsies "blow" themselves for such an affair as this. A pledge before the King and the removal of the bride's blankets to the bridegroom's wagon are usually enough to constitute marriage. But this camp, on Harvey avenue between Stillwell's and Coney Island, was the biggest gathering of Russian Gypsies that has been in this section of the country for some time.
The tribe has just come back from a trip to California. The contracting parties are persons of importance, and there is a Romance. This Romance is the real reason why the tribe "blowed" itself
for two days and nights to a paid orchestra, stewed chicken and ten kegs of beer.
Lizzie Krabous is rated as the beauty of the tribe. This summer Lizzie passed her fourteenth birthday, which made her of marriageable age according to gypsy customs. Two suitors came to woo, Joe Jachim and George Somebody or other—no one ever spelled the name and no one without the Romany accent
could pronounce it.
Now, George was poor and Joe had wealth. Consequently, according to all the rules laid down by novelists in the matrimonial game, Joe carried a heavy handicap. Often he carried his hated wealth—two wagons, five horses and an extra set of blankets—when Lizzie refused to ride with him and walked with George. Yet Joe did not despair.
But one night a few days before the wedding Joe found the lovers back of a tent, and his patience gave way. There was a scrap, which they heard in Coney Island, and when the dust had cleared away George was down and out. When Lizzie saw how well Joe handled a knife,
her heart flipped and she accepted him on the spot. Hence the wedding.
All the tribe knocked off telling fortunes and gathered in the ring of tents at the camp. The biggest tent was turned into a bridal chapel. A Hungarian Gypsy orchestra, which has been playing in a cafe in New York, was hired for the occasion. They sat on upturned copper kettles at one side of the tent
and played "Bedelia," "Farwell, My Blue Bell," "The Girl with the Chang-able Eyes," and other such wild Romany
melodies.
The men of the tribe lay on their fronts in a row at the rear, with the King in the middle. King John has long hair and dignified side whiskers.
His only festive attire was a red silk handkerchief, which he wore at his throat over his everyday clothes. But the rest of the men wore a gaudy garment, which hasn't any English name and isn't like any garment of which white people know. It is a cross between a shirt waist and a French peasant blouse. It has leg o'mutton sleeves and is made of the loudest material purchaseable. The bride's father's was of green and yellow Highland plaid. The bridegroom's was red with a Paisley shawl pattern in yellow. The happy man also wore overalls, a slouch hat and top boots newly greased.
Outside the tent the women were dancing the czardas to the music. Their costumes were beyond description for high color, but the gaud gave the general effect of a fire in an oil well. The children, wearing very few clothes of any kind, galloped around the Americans who had gathered to gaze and begged everything in sight from pennies to cigarettes.
"Why, what are you going to do with that little man?" asked a summer girl of a six-year-old, who had just got a cigarette from her escort.
"Huh! I show yo'," said the little man. He produced a match from somewhere in his one garment and toddled away, blowing a cloud of smoke.
The gypsy women now and then dropped over to the Americans and picked up an honest quarter by telling fortunes.
As at all society weddings these sensation seekers were a great bother. But late in the afternoon there came a flurry
of rain which most of them scattered.
Observing this, King John gave the signal for the betrothal—first act in a gypsy wedding.
The bride, eating onion stew with her fists in her father's tent, wiped her hands on her skirts, rose and formed the bridal procession. It was delayed somewhat because the maid of honor, the bride's sister, was trying to light a cigarette which she had wheedled out of a spectator. This maid of honor, who is seven years old, wore a purple cotton slip split up the back and decollete legs.
First came the bride. She was glad in a kimono kind of waist, red and purple. Her short skirt was of blue and black stripes. She wore new, high-heeled shoes. In the plaits of her black hair, which were brought over her shoulders to fall on her breast, she had a stage fortune of imitation gold coins.

On her head was a wreath of artificial red roses, from which hung a red and yellow bridal veil, garnished with axie
grease and bacteria applique.
Her mother, who weighed 350 pounds, walked to her left. She blazed in bright red, and her head was bound up in a scarlet Romany scarf. Her feet were encased in Congress gaiters. She wore no stockings. The proud father pranced on the other side.
So they advanced over a bridal path strewn with rags, empty tin cans and butcher paper, to the throne of King
John. The orchestra played "Kiss Me Good-night, Little Darling," and the bridal party squatted before King John.
The betrothal, conducted in Romany, appeared to be a simple ceremony. King John did most of the talking. According to all the rules and customs of weddings it was up to the bride's mother to weep at this point. She didn't though.
She was too busy getting a light for her pipe from the cigarette of the maid of honor.
This first act over, a waiter began to decant a beer in pails. It was passed from lip to lip in pewter and silver-on-copper flacons. Those flacons are the real thing. They are the chief wealth of this band, and they're made by the reputation of a collector. After that there was more dancing, even the men waking up this time, and the bride and her mother began to cut up chickens for the bridal feast—a big stew, made in a four-foot copper kettle.
Unlike most heroines of society weddings the bride graciously submitted to an interview.
"Yo' want I tell yo' fortune?" she said. "Come on, now. Yo' cross my palm. I give good luck; come on! No?
Yes? Yo' have yo' fortune told already?
I bring yo' luck. Yo' want I bring luck. Come on. Dot Joe? Oh, yes, he good man. Say, papa! Yo' len! me a cigarette!"
Placing her hand on the unsanitary
paw of the man who is about to take up his burden with her, the bride borrowed a light. The finding that there was nothing doing in the fortune telling line, she closed the interview.
By ten o'clock in the evening the tribe had finished the stew to its last bone and was broaching the last mug in the last keg. They kept it up all night and finished the ceremony about dark the following evening. Then the bride and bridegroom drank from the same cup, according to Romany tradition, received the King's blessing, and were escorted by the orchestra, dancers and populars to the bridal chamber. Joe's best wagon fresh painted for the occasion.

KEAZER FALLS.

A Large and Interesting Collection of Old Curies.

Walter Newbegin of this place has a very large and valuable collection of old stamps and old cures. Mr. Newbegin was born in the town of Denmark, Aug.
13th, 1845, the youngest son of Elias H.
Newbegin of Parsonsfield and Mary Hoit of Scituate, Conn. When but a small boy his parents moved to Saco,
where he was educated in the high schools of that place. At the age of 18 he had severed his apprenticeship as a cigar maker. In the years following he worked in various states, namely,
Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts,
New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Washington, Ohio,
and Maryland.

In 1876 he was one of nine men who formed a company, Westfield, Mass., for the manufacture of cigars. He continued in this company for ten months,
moving to Keazer Falls in 1877 and opening the place he now occupies. For several years he employed three regular men. He established a trade which he has been supplying himself. He is the sole manufacturer of the celebrated Deacon cigar and recently added new brands.

He has always been a Democrat having held the position of postmaster under Cleveland's second administration.
Mr. Newbegin has been an untiring worker all his life and has seldom taken a rest from his labors. But several years ago he took up the fad of stamp collecting and old cures as a change
from his daily occupation.

He has a certificate, No. 450,283, size 2 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches; on its face is the following inscription. The bearer is entitled to receive fifty five Spanish milled dollars or an equivalent sum in gold or silver according to a resolution of Congress, the 14th of January, 1877, signed by L. O. Cathartes on his back are stamped two leaves and the printers' name, Hall & Settlers, 1779. It is in perfect condition.

Our attention was then called to his old cures which are found lying on tables, shelves, hanging on the walls, suspended from the ceiling, in fact,
every way you turn, your eyes will rest upon some quaint and curious old relic.

We were handed a carved wooden sheath in which was a knife picked from the battlefield in the Philippines by a United States Lieutenant. The blade is 12 inches long, slightly crooked and is certainly a most horrible looking weapon.

Suspended from the wall is a pair of spectacles which were worn by Elder John Buzzell, the first Baptist minister who preached in this town. He was 90 years of age. His eyesight came to him and he also grew a new head of hair and a set of teeth. Hanging from the wall by the western window is a photo of the first white child born in Gorham, Mary Gorham Phiney, born Aug. 17th, 1730, married James Irish.

Nestling away in a safe retreat on a table is found a Spanish drinking cup which was taken from a grave in Peru
by a Jamaica Plain sea captain while exploring for relics. He dug it from the earth himself. He made a present of it to his sister and she to Mr. New-begin's sister, who in turn presented it to him with a written history which states that it is one thousand years old or more. Mr. Newbegin has shown it to an expert in this line and he says it is nearer the truth than a lie.

A horse's hoof and shoe made from one of the gigantic trees of the Yosemite Valley named the grizzly giant, which is said to be the oldest vegetable citizen in the world. John Muir says that the giant appears to be the zenith of its growth.
It has reached the zenith of its growth.
It seems to think that it is growing old
as such trees are measured in years.

How to Vote, for 25 Cents.

You see we were riding along and the newspaper agent was cracking up the several papers he represented and he wasn't giving me a very high price for them. Then he began to try to get me to subscribe for some of his papers saying that he had one paper for 25 cents a year that would tell me just how to vote in the coming election.

"Why," I said to him, "There are men who would give $25 as quick as they could get it out of their pocket, to know
just how to vote."

"Well," he said, "This paper is a Socialist paper and it tells just what the party intends to do."

He went on to say that any party
would point out the effect of the trusts
but he said the Socialist party would point out the remedy.

Well, of course any clear thinking man will admit that the Socialist is the nearest right and I would vote with them only a man might as well stay at home to go to our town meeting and vote a socialist ticket, but if one vote
would give them the balance of power
I would be glad to cast that vote but I did not take the paper that would tell me just how to vote for it. I had decided just how I should vote long before I saw the agent and if I can get to the Town Hall this fall I shall probably vote.

I don't pretend to know that it is just right but if any of you want to know just how to vote you can get a paper of that agent for the sum of 25 cents that will tell you just how.

School District Reunion.

The sun shone bright on the second annual reunion of former pupils, teachers and residents of the old Crockett Ridge school district, Wednesday, Aug. 31. Soon after 10 o'clock the people began to assemble at the Four Corners, where for 75 years a schoolhouse has held open its hospitable door to the pupils of the neighborhood.

The house had been prettily decorated and across the roof the old boys had cut a clean swath in the growth of beautiful white birches, where one long table stretched its length out into the woods loaded with tempting dishes. At noon this table, seating nearly a hundred, was filled and emptied and filled again, but the hospitality of Crockett Ridge's noted cooks was equal to the occasion, and food and drink were abundant and appetizing to the end.

After the noon repast the company assembled in the schoolhouse where the following program was enjoyed by all, and best enjoyed by the school boys and girls who attended school there in the days of auld lang syne.

An address of welcome was given by the acting president, Edith Farnham Knightly. The record of the very successful meeting of a year ago was read by Emma Titcomb. In the absence of the secretary, Addie Titcomb Thurston. An address on "Some Strong Points and the Remedy for Weak Points in our Rural Schools" was given by Supt. Chas. P. Barnes.

Dr. S. A. Bennett spoke feelingly of the citizens and pupils in '94. Mrs. Merrill, who taught a term in '68, brought smiles to the lips of the gray headed men who went to school to her then, as she rehearsed some of their doings. Wm. P. French emphasized the need of cooperation in all attempts at good government and charity in all cooperation.

Mrs. Adalade L. Young read a story. Mrs. F. P. Towne, Augusta H. Frank, Mrs. Chas. A. Merrill, Mrs. Fannie Towne Dismore and others were called upon for a word and responded briefly. Interspersed with the speaking were solos by Mrs. Frank Kimball, Albert A. Towne, and Mrs. Verne M. Whitman, and duets by Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Whitman.

Officers for next year: Pres.—Mrs. Edith F. Knightly. Vice-pres.—Mrs. Fannie Dismore and Mrs. Julia Horne.

Sec.—Mrs. Emma P. Flint. Treas.—Albert P. Farnham. After singing a verse of "God Be With You" the company broke up with a ringing vote of thanks to each one who had labored for the success of this reunion, and a strong resolution to be present at the reunion in 1905.

The following is a partial list of those present:
